Generation No. 1

1. Seth Wade was born 14 November 1811 in Russell Co., KY. He was the son of 2. Joseph Wade and 3. Henrietta Nelson. Seth died 25 January 1862 in Russell Co., KY, and was buried in Cem., Russell Co., KY.

OWENS. The family established a home on a 200 acre farm on Caney Fork Creek in Russell Co. in a two story log house with the kitchen some 40 feet away from the main house. Heating of both units was from fireplaces on both levels. Some distance away lived the Negro couple Pete and Moll. A spring furnishing cold water for the family's use was nearly a half mile across the valley in front of the house. Hogs were fattened on grain raised by Seth and his sons and driven over land to market in Nashville, Tennessee. Record of Seth and Henrietta's marriage was found in the Marriage Bond Book Number 1, page 9. He married Elizabeth "Betsy" Wilson 27 October 1831 in Russell Co., KY. She was born 30 October 1811 in Russell Co., KY. She was the daughter of Moses Wilson and Jane. Elizabeth died 21 April 1876 in Russell Co., KY, and was buried in Russell Co., KY.

!According to a letter dated april 23, 1876 and written to Cy Wade from Anna E. Wade, his mother, Betsy died "suddenly without a struggle."

Generation No. 3

4. Richard Wade was born 27 October 1752 in Goochland Co., VA. He was the son of 6. Richard Wade and 7. Elizabeth "Betty" Barker. Richard died 7 February 1844 in Henry Co., MO/Clinton Co. KY.

!Settled in Wayne Co. in 1801. He later owned land on Beaver Creek, amount increasing to 400 acres in 1824. Richard grew to manhood in Goochland Co. VA and with the coming of the Revolutionary War he was called in March 1777 to serve under the command of Capt William Johnson and did so with activity at Williamsburg. When he returned from duty in July he moved to Bedford Co. VA and there enlisted for six months in a company under the Command of Capt. Charles Watkins, to guard the frontier from Indian raids. The company arrived at Boonesborough, Ky on October 12, 1777. Richard was one of 29 or 29 going under the command of Daniel Boone to the Blue Licks to make salt for the Fort, and all were captured on February 8, 1778 by some 120 Indians under the leadership of Chief Blackfish. Richard Wade, along with the others, was taken to the Indian town on the Miami River in present Ohio, then he and some of the others on to Detroit, and finally to Montreal to spend over three years as prisoner and slave. He escaped in July 1781 and returned to Boonesboro in December 1781 by way of Boston, Fort Pitt and the Falls of the Ohio (Louisville). General George Rogers Clark interceded on his behalf immediately after his return from captivity, to prevent him being called up for additional active duties on a trip into the Indian stronghold of Ohio. During the remaining Revolutionary War his duties were in defense of Boonesboro and in scouting parties against the Indians. During the Battle of the Blue Licks in 1783, he was one of those left to guard Fort Boonesboro, but later went with the others to assist in burying the dead. Richard Wade continued to live at Fort Boonesboro and in Madison Co., KY until December 1801, when he settled on Indian Creek in Wayne Co., later to be included in Clinton Co. Wayne Co. had been formed in 1800, and the land in the Cumberland River Valley was fertile and available for settling. Forty veterans of the Revolutionary War were living in Wayne Co. at the same time, one a Major Hancock, possibly a brother to Judith Hancock, wife of Richard Wade. Richard Wade sold 120 acres to Richard Wade, Jr on April 15, 1824, and in 1826 sold land on Indian Creek to Joel Burchett, and in 1829 sold 7 acres in Fayette Co., off Hoffmans fork of Boones Creek which was adjoining Richard Wade's original claim. Richard Wade applied for a Revolutionary War Pension in Cumberland Co., KY on July 12, 1833, and stated he was living with his grandson in Clinton Co. and son in law in Cumberland Co. He reportedly went to Henry Co., Missouri with his son, Richard
